

Female Doctorate Recipient Representation, Funding, and Debt

More females have been earning PhDs in biological and biomedical sciences over time.

Female doctorate recipients in biological and biomedical sciences use more of their own resources to support educational and living expenses during graduate school.

Compared to males, fewer female PhD recipients in all fields have no graduate debt and amass more than $30,000 in graduate debt.

